CURRENT PROBLEMS OF FEDERALISM IN THE CONTEXT OF THE MODERN WORLD ORDER

In this article the author substantiates a number of problematic areas related to federalism on the example of the polyspheric functioning of the Russian Federation. A number of positions are presented that justify the need to renovate the model of public administration in terms of its correlation with current global trends. The conclusions presented in the article contribute to the development of theoretical and practical knowledge in terms of the conceptual consideration of federalism. The problem of this topic is, on the one hand, the correlation of federalism with other systems of political reality, on the other hand, in the unique situation in which the Russian Federation finds itself in the context of the development of the history of state systems and international relations. The latter indicates an increasing trend in the search for unique (non-standard) solutions based not only on existence, but also related to project activities that allow us to look into the future.

Keywords: international relations, federalism, world order.

CRIMINAL PERSECUTION IN CERTAIN MUSLIM COUNTRIES

The author of the article uses a comparative legal research method. The author examines analogues of the institution of criminal prosecution in certain Muslim countries (Iran, Saudi Arabia, Turkey, Egypt). Muslim criminal procedure is an independent historical form of criminal procedure. The author of the article proposes to single out Muslim countries with a special Muslim process (Saudi Arabia, Iran) and Muslim countries with a criminal process (Egypt, Turkey). The second group includes most of the Muslim countries. It is appropriate to speak only about the ideological and religious autonomy of the Muslim model of the criminal process. Western legal technique has become universal.

Keywords: criminal prosecution, foreign criminal procedure, criminal procedure, Muslim criminal procedure, sharia.
